I first met Anne on the school bus that took us from junior high to my home outside town and to hers, further west, into the Osage hills. She would soon surprise me with her comfort at talking with adults as their intellectual equal. Anne excelled in her high school classes and went on to college. While our letter exchanges became infrequent, her writing was always perceptive and kind. I will remember her always as lovely, gifted, and full of promise.

“ She was a quiet girl in school but always nice to me. Very smart but didn't keep her from being a nice person ”
