“ You know even in a divorce you don't give up on family. Those people will always be your family there is a bond there that won't die out. Poppy could be hateful sometimes but I have the fondest memories of him. That man loved with his whole heart and had profound impact on people's lives. I pray that one day people will look back and be able to think of me that way. I love you Pops and will hold you in my heart always
