My cousin Carol Lynn always amazed me. She was so intelligent, a talented actress, and a good conversationalist. I swear she would have made a good politician, since she kept up with current events so well. I truly enjoyed talking with her and, yes, she will be missed. RIP Carol Lynn

CAROL LYNN! -- YOU WILL BE MISSED, so very sorry, even though we kept in touch by email (and love of MUTTS (!)) and the occasional but too rare phone call, that i hadn't seen you since you moved back to bartlesville ... and will always remember you kindness and generosity and humor and love and support and friendship ... and our first meeting at that audition at gallery players in brooklyn, where we hit it right off, and while conversing while waiting, discovered that we'd both attended t.u.-! (you 10 years before me (!!)) my condolences to your family, and to your other close friends. LOVE YOU ... MISS YOU (already).

I will miss Carol Lynn. We were childhood friends. I remember our long walks around the blocks with the neighborhood "gang" after dinner when the heat of the day had cooled off. Whenever I got back to Bartlesville, we would meet for dinner. She was an acute observer of the life around her and always had something interesting to say about it. She was very smart and creative. She must have been a terrific actor. I wish I could have seen her performances. I bet she was great. I remember her telling me of the experiences she and Jim Henson had in New York City after college looking for acting jobs and enjoying the "life."

Caro we will miss your smile, and personality! I can't imagine not getting to see your sweet face at our class reunions. It just won't be the same without you. You now will entertain them in heaven with your wings! Patty Carol was the matriarch of our all-female cousin clan. We continued the tradition of celebrating her mother's birthday in May for a few years with all of us congregating at the house in Bartlesville. Fun times over the years from Thanksgivings to family get-togethers...this was our meeting place.

Carol was my genealogy traveling buddy. We took some great trips to the ancestral lands in Indiana and Missouri. We were on the hunt for ancestors both past and present. Hot summer days found us traipsing (one of the words she used quite often) over many a cemetery looking for long-lost relatives. This was before a lot of internet research was available. We also visited many of the local libraries and museums in those areas and met up with several distant cousins. People would ask her why she would do genealogy research since she didn't have children. She said, why not? She had a fierce, strong love of family and history.

She also loved tennis and was proud of her acquisition of the tennis channel which she would watch at all hours of the day and night. After moving back to Bartlesville, she would also have at least one play in the works every year at the local theatre companies.

A very special thank-you to her dear friend, Cherry, and the people who helped her through her last few weeks. Your kindnesses and help are greatly appreciated.

Carol dearly loved Sun-Fest so I expect her spirit will be floating around Sooner Park checking things out!

Miss you!
