“ I have many funny memories of Boone, as his daughter Danette and I have been close friends for 40 years. One of my favorite memories of Boone was when Danette and I were teenagers. We were getting ready to go out on a Saturday night, and were busy in front of the bathroom mirror doing our hair make makeup. I remember he came and stood in the bathroom doorway for minute, and then said "I see you girls are putting on your war paint," and then he just walked away. For some reason, that has always just made me laugh. Probably because I remember him being a man of few words when I was growing up. But when he finally said something, it would typically be something witty! I know he will be missed by many, and my prayers are with the family at this difficult time.
