“ Oh Mimmi, I didn't know the Lord had taken you home. I think about you so often , precious memories from the past. The quilt we made together when I was just 14, is still on my bed. I remember how you called me "Sissy" & how you told me that I looked good in red. Later on you paid me the best complement ever, after I gave birth to Jason, about a year later you said I was a good mama. You had many giving qualities & loved Pippie with all your heart! I remember seeing you two all dressed up getting ready to go to a Country Music show in town, you always dressed so nice & pretty in blue. That Periwinkle eyeshadow we wore in the early 70's was your trademark. I loved to ask you to curl my hair in ringlets and I could tell by your nurturing touch that it meant a lot to you. We shared some really good laughs, fishing and camping trips and the trips to Bella Vista were special. You made a very pretty home for all of us & you worked ever so hard, cooking, cleaning, decorating and even painting the porch and mowing the yard so daddy wouldn't have to after he got off work. One memory is so special- how you would reserve a portion of crust you had made by hand for a pie; just for me- this made me feel so special. And when I experienced my biggest heartache with a break-up, you were there to hold me when I cried in the summer of 1973. You taught me how to hold my head up and look into the eyes of others, breaking my extreme shyness when you first came along. And I still remember the first time I saw you. Pip took Donna Jo, Paul & I to meet you after you two first met. I was in the back seat & you opened up the front door of your home and kinda leaned out sideways with your round long earrings swaying. You had a big Country girl smile with that blond updo hairstyle you wore throughout your adult life. Mimmi, there's no doubt you never knew how special you were to me, I tried to show you with flowers from time to time, but you rejected them for reasons unknown. I'll always have a special place in my heart for you. I love you & will see you when the Lord calls me home.
