“ Mr. Dunlap was my sophomore English teacher and one of my favorite high school teachers. We studied "Julius Caesar" and Mr. Dunlap spurred my love for Shakespeare. Another fun class subject he taught was Robert Browning's "My Last Duchess". He challenged us to write a letter to a father who might consider his daughter's betrothal to the Duke of Ferrara. I very much enjoyed his class and have fond memories of it.

“ I enjoyed his class and he is on my list of favorite teachers. He had a good sarcastic sense of humor. He'd put his pinky on his cheek when he was "pontificating" something....He came up with the word "hisser" for a gender neutral possessive, and I remember him rolling his eyes at me, with commentary, regarding my habit of interchanging their/there/they're.....

“ His eyes still speak the kindness and compassion he shared in the classroom. Mr. Dunlap was an inspiration to many. The impact he had on his students and community is a remarkable legacy. May all experience comfort and peace amidst their grief.

“ I last saw Irvin at OK Mozart this year when he came to see the wonderful Wizard of Oz movie concert. Dortha said it was one of his favorites--and I'm so glad he was there for it, only days before his death. I remember when he first came to town as a new teacher...and who could forget all his years as old Drosselmeyer! Our town is going to miss Irvin Dunlap.
