“ I’m truly devastated to learn of Isidro’s passing. Janice, words cannot describe what you both meant to me growing up. Thank you for loving me as your own and putting up with the “little neighbor girl” who forced you to be a part of my family. I have so many memories of Isi always making me laugh with his big laugh and taking the time to listen to me. Sending love ❤️ .

“Isidro, I don't know where to begin my story but, I need you to know how much you meant to me. I remember when we first met and to be honest, because I could always be honest with you, I wasn't sure if you were the right one for Janice. Janice is like a big sister in my life, and we always looked out for each other. I trusted her judgement but kept a watchful eye on you. Initially you were very quiet and conversation between us was thin, and I couldn't figure out if it was your confidence in speaking English or just your conservative nature. This went on for a few years between us and slowly our relationship developed. Our conversations began to grow further and further past the normal of just being about the local weather if you know what I mean. You worked hard at everything you did. You were never half invested in anything you did; you were always 100% vested and if it didn't work, it just wasn't meant to happen. I watched you grow from the bottom of the company to the top and I don't think you knew this, but I would tell my colleagues and friends about your accomplishments and how astonished and proud I was of you. I was always impressed with how meticulous you could be with your planning, approach and follow through of a project. In another area of character that I would like to mention is that I am a music lover and especially live music. I remember being in your "Man Cave" downstairs and there was a multitude of guitars that you had collected. You picked one up and just started tearing up a rock and roll song and I couldn't believe what I was hearing. You knew how to play more songs than you knew jokes and I was just literally blown away with this hidden talent. You never seemed to show off this part of yourself to very many people. I was surprised by this because most people with this type of talent would be in a band somewhere but then I realized that this was your place of expression to yourself and not for someone else. We entered another chapter in our friendship when we started cleaning up the farm from all the scrap metal that Daddy Bob had accumulated over the years. We both liked things picked up and organized and this project was not only profitable but a lot of fun working together. We would take our winnings and purchase a new gun or thousands upon thousands of ammunitions to shoot. We once were escorted out to the parking lot by security guards at a Wal-Mart due to the amount of ammo we had purchased that day, LOL!! I'm surprised we weren't listed on the "Most Wanted" for this!! Wow!!! That was a lot of fun!! I have never seen someone with your eagle eye marksmanship skills either. I thought I was pretty good shooter, but you honed my skills to be a better marksman. I cherish a Kimber pistol that you helped me purchase and polish my shooting skills with. I remember our long talks about life in general and your opinions on this subject or that always stayed with me. I do know one thing is for sure, you were the best salesman I have ever known. Smooth and direct in your closing. Did you leave your "Mark"? I can say you did with everyone you met. Friendship is forever and no matter how long we are apart that will never change. I wish I had one more shooting lesson from you before you departed us, but I guess that will have to wait until we meet again. You remain in my daily thoughts my friend. May God Bless You, My Friend!! With Brotherly Love, Vernon

“ I had only known “Eazee Ray” for short time. Isidro was always up for telling his favorite joke to put a smile on your face. I don’t have many pictures, but I do have the memories that I will cherish forever.

“ I don't even know where to start...I guess it's the old cliché fate brought us together. Almost 20 years as my business partner and Spanish big brother. We built successful businesses together, had many up's and down's, and not once in almost two decades did we ever even raise our voices with each other. We agreed on 90% of things, but more importantly we never let the other 10% get between us. On the personal level, we were in each other's trusted circle, and when I needed a lift or a pep talk, your strength and worldly experience often was the remedy. You were one of the great joke and story tellers of all time, and I could never believe how many jokes you had in your arsenal. I am many things thanks to knowing you. I wear nicer cologne, I enjoy better whiskey, I now understand how Formula One works, I'm now a huge fan of Spanish cuisine, and I'm a much better pistol shot...to name a few. But most of all I'm just a better person because of your influence and friendship. I know one day we'll eventually get to have another sip of Johnny Walker, but until then, every day I'll just plain miss you.

John, as you, I don't know where to start..I've read your post so many times I almost have it memorized. I just want you to know that you also made Isidro a better person. You gave him the balance he needed. You were a crucial part in all of his success and you were always a true and loyal friend. Trust was something he did not take lightly but he trusted you...not only in business but also in life. He trusted you with my life as well. I will be forever grateful and indebted to you. Thank you. Also, thank you for posting that picture. I call it "The Dapper Duo"

“ I have had the pleasure of working with Isidro for 18 years. He was not just a boss but family he was like a second dad to me. I looked up and admired him so much. He taught me so many things over the years. He would say “Ive taught you the Isidro ways!” This man could talk your ear off about anything and everything and a hell of a sales man! I will deeply miss him. I always loved when he would call out of the blue and say hey meet me at the farm to blast some brass those were the best times! I think the one thing I will miss the most is our texting back and forth and his silly faces he would send me! Loved this man he was the best!
(Sorry, not sorry for the pic overload)

Dear Timberly, dear dear Timberly. I don't think I have to tell you how much you meant to Isidro. I know he could be a pain with you sometimes...interrupting your day, your night...your life! He did love you very much and appreciated all that you did even though he didn't always tell you so. I cannot tell you how many times I heard him say "I just love that girl!" Thank you for sticking by his side (and mine) all these years. He loved you and I love you!

Isidro you meant the world to us. From the first time we met you were very special. You always kept in touch and always lived life to its fullest. No matter what life brought our way both in good times and bad times you always supported us and encouraged us. Your love for Janice and our family was more than we could ever asked for. We hold dear the memories and am so grateful for you. I appreciate you always asking about Emma. We love you.

Oh how I remember working with Isidro! We hired him at Oil Data after he said he would work for nothing for a while just to show us how hard of a worker he was. Of course we hired him and paid him. Not enough money I'm sure, but he did a fantastic job! He was always someone you could trust! Period!!! I remember so well going to Bananas after work to have a drink or two and shake off the bs we had to put up with at work. I'm sure he was pretty sick of my bs as well, but that's ok, he was my friend even though technically I was his supervisor. Janice, I hope all is well with you! You married a winner!
