John was such a sweetheart. When his breathing got so bad and he couldn't keep his yard up anymore, occasionally my husband and I would go over and mow/weed eat. We didn't want anything in return, just his friendship, and a funny story or two, and boy did he have some. John would always try to send some fruit or this/that home with us just because he didn't want to feel like he was a charity case. We sure took a liking to him during that time. Rest in peace Mr. John ☐

John called me after the 2010 Reunion and talked for a long time. The first thing he said was you might not know who this is, but it's your cousin John Walter Gagan. He said he called people on their birthdays, and it meant everything to hear his voice because it was 3 days before my first cancer operation. He was a good man. Our deepest sympathy and prayers for the family.
