“ The last 10+ years, I really was not around Lyle and his family, but I always considered Lyle a friend.

What type of man was Lyle? Well, he and I worked together at the VFW lounge. I was down and floundering in life. Some of the employees at the bar were going to attend the NASCAR race in Texas one year. I desperately wanted to go, but I could not afford it. What did Lyle do? He help make it possible to go. He helped pay my way....on his own.

Another example, around that same time frame, he invited me to his house after work one night (well more than once) to play video games and drink some beer. While playing games, i got a phone call about a friend that passed away unexpectedly. It was devastating to me when I heard the news. Lyle insisted we stop playing, and he put his arm around me and consoled me. He allowed me to talk about my friend and some of the memories.

And his smile. Every time I seen Lyle; he was wearing a smile that lit up the room. His whit. My lord, if you tried to be sarcastic with him, you had to be prepared to face an onslaught of sarcasm.

Rest in Peace my friend and Godspeed, until we meet again!
