“ So many memories of my friend Neva, come flooding back, over some 80 years of the gentle , steady warmth of her friendship. After I left the place where we were girls, over the years seeing her has always been a homecoming. I can hear her easy laugh and feel the warmth of her welcome, her patience and grace when life was hard, her pleasure in offering the comforts of food or reassurance, the uncomplicated sociability with her and Jerry.. There were times we needed each other for tears and found each other instinctively when we were far apart. She has blessed my life with her love and even though these last years have made contact rare and harder to make, I am bereft. Janet and Patrick, we have known an angel. She sends us love and peace, as always.
