Olga Leigh Stubblefield, 91, long-time Bartlesville resident passed away peacefully on February 16, 2018.

Olga was born on December 11, 1926 in Gorman, TX to Andrew "Conway" and Arabell (Harrison) Underwood. Two weeks later, the family moved to Carbon, TX. Olga excelled in academic pursuits, while participating in basketball, journalism and Home Economic Clubs. After high school, Olga attended Abilene Christian College for a year before transferring to North Texas State College earning a Bachelor of Science in Vocational Home Economics in 1948.

In March of 1948, Olga married her high school sweetheart, Jack Stubblefield, after his return from military service overseas and subsequent graduation for Texas A&M. They made their home in Bartlesville, OK, where Olga taught Home Economics at Central Jr. Hight until after her daughters were born. Olga's primary focus was family life, raising her two daughters and enjoying her grandchildren, balanced with participating in numerous organizations and clubs. She was an active member of Sweet Gum Garden Club, Child Study Club; and in 1979 became a charter member of the Woolaroc Chapter of Questors International Club which focused on historical significance. During her 25-year membership she also served as President.

Olga had a passion for playing Bridge until her mid-eighties. In her late seventies, she discovered the challenges of an investment club serving a term as President of this club also.

Olga was known for her skills as an excellent seamstress in producing professional quality draperies and home décor. Her ability to create beautiful and unusual garments, for herself and her daughters through a sketch or mere description reflected her true ability and vision. Her excellent culinary skills were relished by all family members. In addition, her service to others was extended through teaching Summer Bible School, serving as a Girl Scout Leader and volunteering as an aide in special needs classrooms.

Olga enjoyed pursuing a variety of new activities and experiences and continuing some interests for a lifetime. Her interests also included gardening, flower arrangement, refurbishing antique furniture, antique collections, pottery making, reading, bicycling, playing tennis, and golf.

Olga is survived by daughters, Tana Stubblefield Grogan and husband Steve of Bartlesville, OK, and Ginny Stubblefield of St. Petersburg, Florida. Also surviving are grandchildren Joshua Suggs of Plano, Texas, Chelsea Grogan of Edmond, OK, and Ross Grogan of Edmond, OK; great-grandchildren Taylor, Jackson, and Collin Suggs of Plano, TX. She is survived by a brother, Gene Underwood of Scottsdale, AZ, as well as a number of nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband of 68 years, Jack Stubblefield, on November 15, 2016.

“ Hello. My name is Tammy. I grew up in and around Bartlesville. No one of Ms. Stubblefield's family knows me. I just wanted to share a little bit of insight on her from my perspective. She hired me in the early nineties when I was a young single mom. I cleaned her house that was so clean already, I almost didn't know what to do; her house was not even dusty to me, but she guided me. She taught me that if you clean things that are already "clean", then they will stay clean and never get dirty. She would have me there when she was gone mostly. She was trusting of me without even blinking. I was trustworthy, but either she had good eyesight for okay-people or she was just a really trusting person. I remember her dressing in velvet purple for I think a bridge outing. She had the hat and the suit to match! I thought that was so neat. In my opinion, she was high class and the real deal and I got a peek into someone's life that otherwise I would never have and it amazed me. I grew up in Bartlesville, moved away, became pregnant and while I was married, I was separated for over four years and on public assistance, trying to go to school. After all that, I really think maybe she hired me for me.
