

Sacred Dawn Davis

November 16, 1974 - March 12, 2024

Sacred Dawn Davis (Sutter), 49, of Osawatomie, Kansas died on March 12, 2024 in Tulsa, Oklahoma after injuries sustained from a motorcycle accident. She was born in Paola, Kansas on November 16, 1974 to Julie Ann Deering (Kellogg) and Ivan Dale Ross. She was adopted by Scott Sutter on December 9th, 1981. She was loved dearly by her grandparents, Edward Deering and Una Fern Deering (Prothe). She entered into marriage with Jason Davis on September 6, 1996.

Sacred was the grandma to Ashton, Bailey, Bella, Reagan, Sawyer, Fletcher, Layne, Jameson, and Lailah. Sacred had many loved ones that she considered family and was so kind-hearted and generous to anyone she met. If you needed love, she was there to give it.

Sacred went to Osawatomie High School and was a part of the class of 1993. She went to cosmetology school in the mid 90s, and practiced until 2004 when she became a stay at home mom. She went on to Nursing School at Fort Scott Community College where she graduated with her Associate of Science in Nursing in 2019. She went to work at Research Medical Center on the trauma medical-surgical unit after becoming a nurse. She then began working at St. John Medical Center in Tulsa on their pediatric unit, where she thrived as a nurse.

Sacred was fiercely independent and mischievous, she lived her life without restraint, and with so much passion. She gave the best hugs and was able to make even the darkest of days so bright. So many people use the word light to describe her. It didn't matter if you were family, friend, work family, an acquaintance, a patient, or a stranger on the street corner. She was the light, but not just one light. She was whatever type of light was needed in that moment.

She is preceded in death by her grandparents Edward and Una Fern Deering, Stepdad Joe Kellogg, Great Grandma Prothe, Grandma Shirley McCoach, Uncle Rex Ross, and Father Ivan Ross.

She is survived by her son, Nickolas Todd Davis, her boyfriend Jason Cutler of the home, her daughters Kelsey Dawn Newell, and husband Jeremy of Billings, Mo. Khrystin Nickole Mott and husband Christopher of Bartlesville, Ok. As well as her ex-husband Jason Davis of Bartlesville, Ok.
