“ I am still trying to comprehend that you are gone. I miss those evenings sitting outside on the swing and watching the cars drive by, the planes overhead and waiting on the sun to set. I will always appreciate how you send me cooked dinners all the way out to North Carolina when I was battling cancer. Every few months, you would load up Dad's truck and he would make the drive to deliver the goodies you sent because you knew I didn't have a lot of energy for cooking and the sort. You helped me buy my first house and a few cars too. And I always joked that it was time for you to buy a new TV so I could have the old one! You were more than just a friend, you were my step Mom. I loved you dearly and always will. Rest peacefully and I hope you are getting to cuddle Scooter and all the other fur babies that you loved so much. Til we meet again.....
