“ I already miss you Wiley. I enjoyed our talks some long and some short. You told me to be one with my husband and always make good decisions for my kids. You told me about the war, about politicians, and about how you could teach me to get my finances in order! Jay said he is glad he played chess with you and Isabella said she misses sugar as well. I always called you"the world's toughest man". You had been through so much yet still had empathy and nice words for people and life. You taught, maybe reminded me, many simple truths in life. Thank you for being my friend, Love Carrie

“ Wiley was one of a kind. A man of integrity and honor in my eyes. Hard working, independent, strong-willed, loved to joke around and have a good time. I always enjoyed being around Wiley. He had a way of lighting up a room with his uplifting attitude - even when "Arthur" (Arthritis) came to visit. Thanks for the memories, 'grandpa' Wiley! I miss you and love you very much!
